U.S. Suspends Housing Work At Fort Polk

Brucker Notifies Solons Building May Be Cancelled

WASHINGTON (Special)—Secretary of the Army Wilbur Brucker has informed members of the Louisiana Congressional Delegation that instructions are being issued to suspend further construction of the $33 million Capehart housing project at Fort Polk.

Brucker said this action was taken in order "to preclude commitment of additional funds on a project which may have to be cancelled."

He emphasized that no final decision concerning future utilization of Polk has been made as of this date.

Solons Rap Move
Sen. Allen J. Ellender and Russel B. Long of Louisiana in a joint statement stated, "We are vigorously protesting both this action and the possible resulting action with respect to utilization of Polk and requesting a personal conference with the secretary to discuss the matter."

Further strong protest came from Rep. George Long of Pineville. Congressman Long said he believed the entire Louisiana delegation will meet with Secretary Brucker "And let him bring up to date as to the reasons for this action."

Political Move
The congressman said he thought the army was "making cuts to make the people and congress more conscious of what is going on... My first reaction is that this is a political move... designed to make Congress loosen the purse strings and make the people understand they're doing all they can to cut expenses by reducing the army. But at the same time they scream about all the scarecrow business such as we are liable to be in war any minute."

Long said this action "will cost the United States millions and it won't get anything for it." He added that he thinks all the planning and grading have been done for the project and that contractors have committed themselves for material.

The army's action "Smacks of Politics." The congressman declared, "It is the same thing they use to scare the people every year. Last year the threat was that we were just a few days away from war with Russia... These things always happen just before they bring the budget to Congress. I predict this thing will backfire and that Congress will figure if the army can make sure cuts as this it won't need a heavy appropriation."

Brucker Text
Long released part of the text of the letter he received from Secretary Brucker. It was as follows:

"Resources and manpower and money scheduled to be made available to the army to reveal... (Continued On Page 5-A)"

U.S. Ambassador To Honduras In Monroe For Visit

The United States ambassador to Honduras, Whiting Willauer, came to Monroe yesterday to visit ailing General Claire Chennault, his former partner in the Civil Air Transport airlines in the Far East.

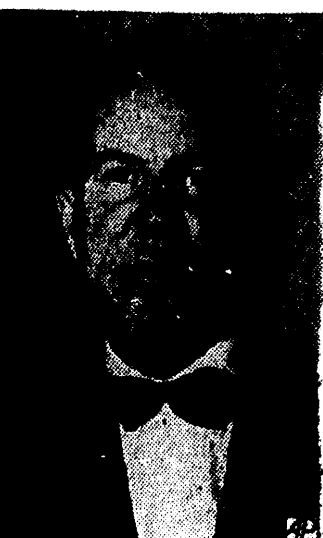

The 51-year-old Willauer, who was vice chairman of the business before he was named as ambassador to Honduras four years ago, said the ex-head of the famed Flying Tigers "looks remarkably well."

Willauer said that although Honduras "needs some well-chosen help," the country is "not asking for any handouts," from the United States.

Honduras, a Central American country about the size of the state of Pennsylvania, with a population of 1,700,000, became a democracy last December 31. The first free election in the country's history was held last year when Chennault was chosen to lead the country.

Major Crime Hits New High Levels
Baton Rouge, Jan. 17 (AP)—Major crime reached a new high in Baton Rouge during 1957, Police Chief Shirley Arrighi said today.

So did arrests, number of complaints investigated, value of stolen property recovered and number of stolen cars recovered. Arrighi reported an overall 40.4 per cent increase over 1956. However, he added, "the figures are not as alarming as they appear to be on the surface."

Faubus Ready To Use Troops 'If Necessary'

PHOENIX, Ariz., Jan. 17 (AP)—Gov. Orval Faubus of Arkansas says the Supreme Court's school desegregation decision is not the law of the land — "it's the law of the case."

"There has been no law passed by Congress on the integration matter," the governor told a Phoenix Press Club forum.

He said President Eisenhower had no authority to send federal troops to Little Rock's Central High School to enforce integration.

"As a matter of fact it was against the law, but who is going to arrest the President?"

The governor said he will use National Guard troops again to prevent integration if the occasion should arise.

"You cannot go against the will of the majority," he added, "and you must head off trouble and damage to property and possible loss of life."

The majority of Little Rock's residents opposed school integration. Faubus said. Therefore he tried to prevent integration of Negro students at Central High.

He said his actions were based on his "faith in Jeffersonian-Lincolnan Democracy."

"It's contrary to Democratic principles to impose the will of a minority upon a majority," he declared.

Integration was accomplished peacefully in other Arkansas communities, Faubus noted, because the majority accepted it. Arkansas led the south in making progress in race relations, he continued.

Solons Probing Louisiana Strike

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 17 (AP)—Sen. Barry Goldwater (R-Ariz.) of the Senate labor racket investigating committee today called for all available information on labor violence reported at the strike-bureau Tube-Kote, Inc., plant at nearby Harvey in Jefferson Parish.

Goldwater revealed in Washington that committee chairman Sen. John McClellan (D-Ark.) has been asked to probe the disputes at the plant.

Meanwhile, Judge L. Julian Samuel of Jefferson Parish District Court in Gretna today continued until Jan. 17 a hearing on a permanent injunction suit seeking to enjoin the Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers of America, locals 10 and 29, and its members from interfering with non-striking plant employees.

Family Says Youth In Prison Only 14

BATON ROUGE, Jan. 17 (AP)—A 14-year-old Missouri boy who lied about his age to get a job apparently talked his way into Angola State penitentiary.

The youth is serving an 18-month term for simple burglary in the state prison. He was not identified.

His mother, from her home in Missouri, told the Baton Rouge State-Times the boy altered his birth certificate to make him appear 17 so he could get a job. "But the birth certificate in the bureau of vital statistics at Jefferson City shows he was born on July 19, 1943," she said. "We are asking for copies of his birth certificate to send to Louisiana officials."

Direct Action On Pollution Issue Assured

The City of Monroe yesterday was assured that the Louisiana Stream Control Commission will deal directly with the State of Arkansas on the pollution problem of the Ouachita river.

In a letter to Commissioner W. D. H. Rodriguez, Kenneth E. Biglane, executive secretary of the Louisiana commission, said recommendations from Louisiana would be made by Arkansas officials "and never to any oil association representing the producers of that State."

Biglane's stand supported opinions of local officials, who this week filed a memorandum to the Arkansas Oil Association that the city has made no commitments to it on the pollution problem.

"The Stream Control Commission will submit its recommendations of water quality of the Ouachita River to the proper pollution control authorities in the State of Arkansas and never to any oil association representing the producers of that state," Biglane said.

His letter came as a reply to a copy of the memorandum signed by Rodriguez and several Twin City officials. The memorandum, which was prompted by news releases from the Arkansas Oil Association, was filed with the Arkansas Water Control Commission.

Stand Restated
Rodriguez restated in the memorandum that plans to solve the pollution problem should be handled between the officials of Arkansas and Louisiana.

He told a group representing the Arkansas Oil Association at a meeting at Camden, Ark., in December that the City of Monroe (Continued On Page 5-A)

'Jes' Ramblin'

Mrs. Marion K. Fisher, director of the Carolyn Rose Strauss Rehabilitation Center in Monroe, and Dr. Stanley Mintz, were speakers at the Monroe Civitan club, Hotel Frances, Thursday night. Mrs. Fisher talked briefly and Dr. Mintz outlined work of restoring to nearly normal as possible those afflicted with polio.

A film "Survival is Not Sufficient," was shown by Capt. J. W. Faler who had charge of the night's program. The film showed many lines of industry where persons reclaimed from polio were enabled to become useful in business and some lines of industry. Altogether the film and the talks combined to provide a valuable evening of instruction.

The boy was sentenced last December 9 after pleading guilty to burglarizing the Town and Country Club in Metairie with a 20-year-old partner.

Dist. Judge L. Julian Samuel of Jefferson Parish, who sentenced him, said no determination of age was made in the investigation. "It's hard to conceive of anyone preferring to go to Angola instead of a juvenile home," he added. "There was no reason to doubt that he was 17 when he told the court that."

His age was revealed yesterday while he was interviewed in the prison classification program, and also by a questionnaire sent to his family.

FIRE JAMS DOWNTOWN STREET—Fire equipment jams St. Charles Street downtown yesterday as firemen battle a general alarm blaze in The Pearl restaurant. A stove burst into flames and an exhaust fan sucked the flames up to second and third floor storage rooms. ## Family Misses Execution Of Slayer Weizel PARCHMAN, Miss., Jan. 17 (AP)—Harvey Edward Weizel died in the gas chamber at 12:33 a.m. today with a psalm on his lips. Ten hours later his mother and sister showed up thinking the execution had been set for 2 p.m.

"I don't know why Mr. Harpole didn't tell us last night," sobbed Mrs. Ida Wetzel of Seneca Falls, N.Y., mother of the 33-year-old badman doomed to a prison slaying.

Chaplain R.B. Hicks explained the hour was set by Sheriff E.W. Williams too late for them to arrive in time from Vicksburg, Miss., where they were staying.

Wetzel, a product of New York's east side gangs who was charged with two Mississippi murders and convicted of one, tried to scream a last message through the thick steel and glass walls of the gas chamber.

'I Wish'...
Newsman-witnesses agreed it sounded like: "I wish I could be out there looking in like you."

Before the thick door of the chamber was closed, Wetzel began repeating the 23rd Psalm aloud. A pound of cyanide gas pellets was dumped into a receptacle of acid. As the cigarette-like smoke curled up he stopped praying. Then his head slumped.

"Just tell the world I'm innocent," he told the Rev. Kermit Canterbury before stepping into the chamber. He turned to executioner C. W. Watson and said: "I have no hard feelings for you."

His sister, Mrs. Lloyd Johnson of Romulus, N.Y., told reporters that Wetzel, during their last dinner shared together last night, repeated his claim he was convicted on perjured testimony.

Was 'Innocent'
"We were pleading for Bill because he was innocent," the slender, attractive sister told reporters today. "Thank heavens for where he is now. He has made those other men suffer." She said she referred to "everyone who (Continued On Page 5-A)"

Says Titan Can Be Moon Trip Vehicle

DENVER, Jan. 17 (AP)—An official of the Martin Co. said today the Titan missiles being developed at the firm's plant in suburban Littleton, Colo., can—with minor changes—give the United States a space vehicle to reach the moon first.

H. W. Merrill, vice president and manager of Martin's Denver division, made the statement in an address before the Denver Chamber of Commerce.

He said the Titan intercontinental ballistic missile is being developed on a crash program basis to meet the most urgent requirements of defense. Then he spoke of what he termed Titan's follow-on capability as a peacetime space vehicle.

Tracts At Selman May Be Granted

City officials yesterday received "strong indication" that the City of Monroe will be granted certain tracts of land at Selman Field for industrial purposes, according to Mayor W. L. (Jack) Howard.

Howard, Commissioner H. W. McSherry and City Attorney Haynes L. Harkey, Jr. met with two CAA officials at Selman Field, after which Howard said the "possibility of our receiving several hundred acres looks good."

The city had received preliminary approval on a request for lands around the airstrip provided the purpose of the request was okayed by the federal government.

However, Howard said the reaction of the officials at the meeting yesterday "strongly implied" that the city will receive "certain designated tracts of land" pending final approval in Washington, D.C.

Interpretation
He explained that under the interpretation of the preliminary approval, the city would first have to obtain an industrial prospect and then appeal to the federal government stating the purpose of its request.

"But if we receive final approval in Washington now we will be able to get the land first and use it as a selling point for bringing in industry," he said.

Flares, Signals
Reports of flares and faint radio signals raised hopes today for 10 airmen whose B50 weather reconnaissance plane disappeared in a typhoon 600 miles north of Guam four days ago.

The U.S. ammunition ship Fire-drake reported sighting flares at 1:58 a.m. today in the search area. Maj. Pete Scoglund of the 79th Air Rescue Squadron said two red flares and one white were observed in the same general area at 2:35 a.m.

The Navy destroyer escort Moore and an air rescue plane both reported hearing a radio distress call, possibly coming from a hand-operated radio of the type carried by the missing aircraft.

Mild Temperatures Expected In Area

Pleasantly mild temperatures with partly cloudy skies are forecast for the Monroe area today, with cloudy skies and some showers expected tomorrow.

High and low temperatures in the area yesterday were recorded at 62 and 33, while Thursday's readings were 53 and 32.

Cloudy and colder is the outlook for the Arkansas area today and tomorrow.

Program Funds Near Exhaustion

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17 (AP)—The Agriculture Department called a halt today on signing up farmers to retire cotton land under the acreage reserve part of the soil bank.

Officials explained this action was necessary to avoid going into the red on the half billion dollar surplus control program.

Under the acreage reserve—which the administration proposes to ditch next year—payments are made to farmers who retire all or part of their planting allotments from wheat, cotton, corn, rice and tobacco. The idea is to hold down production until surpluses can be reduced.

So many more cotton farmers want to take part in the program that the department fears it won't have enough money to pay all of them.

Interest in the cotton acreage reserve is much greater than officials had expected. They recalled cotton crop losses late in the season last year and said many farmers are looking to the acreage reserve as a sort of insurance against possible crop losses this year.

The cotton payments average $38.95 an acre. Of the half billion dollars authorized for the acreage reserve by Congress, 178 million dollars has been allotted for cotton. The cotton share is being apportioned among cotton states and counties.

The department instructed its county officers to sign no more agreements until it can check on just how much of the 178 million dollars has been obligated.

May Take Week
Officials said this check may take a week. Meanwhile, county officers have been asked to keep a list—in the order of their application—of other farmers wanting to take part. Those on this list will be included later if funds are available.

After the check is made, it may be, officials said, that a number of counties will still have unobligated funds that would permit acceptance of additional agreements.

There is a possibility, officials said, that the whole system of allotting the money may have to be revised. The department has been operating on the basis of first come, first served. There has been no limit—save the legal $3.—(Continued On Page 5-A)

Need For Repair On Parish Roads Voiced By Juror

"Roads in Ward 5, outside the West Monroe city limits, really need improvement, and I'm in favor of a program which would bring about good road conditions in that area," commented M. W. Montgomery, president of the Ouachita Parish Police Jury.

Montgomery made the statement last night, when discussing the proposal issued yesterday by three Ward 5 police jurors, to improve 135.6 miles of streets and roads in the ward.

Tom E. Hicks, Ollie Carter and Percy Nichols made public the project after a long time of study and research. Estimated cost of the program would be $1,452,000, to be financed through a 3.66 millage increase on property. Hicks said last night that additional plans will be released within 10 days.

Montgomery stated that money obtained for such a project could be used only for that program. Stressing that they desire to (Continued On Page 5-A)

Captain Committed To Mental Hospital

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 17 (AP)—The retired Navy captain who caused a stir by tipping a cab driver with a $5,000 check was committed to the State Mental Hospital at Agnew today.

Capt. Jesse L. Kenworthy, 66, of Coatesville, Pa., at first defended his sanity at today's hearing, then agreed to an examination by Agnew's Dr. Walter Rappaport, "one of the few psychiatrists I would trust."

On the breach of warranty count, however, the jury said it found "we have no alternative but to conclude that the defendant made a vaccine causing the plaintiffs to come down with polio."

The jury awarded the Gotts-danker child $125,000 damages and her parents $6,500 for expenses. The Phipps boy was granted $14,000 with $1,800 going to his parents for expenses.

The simultaneous trial of the two suits is being used as a test case to determine the future of a number of other suits pending against the company.

AGAINST CUTTER LAB $139,000 Awarded To Polio Victims

OAKLAND, Calif. (UP)—A jury of four men and eight women Friday night absolved Cutter Laboratories of charges of negligence for allowing live polio virus to get into its Salk vaccine, but found it guilty of breach of warranty and awarded $139,000 damages to two child victims.

The jury returned its verdict after about 16 hours of deliberation in the court of Superior Judge Thomas Ledwith to wind up a test trial lasting eight weeks.

The Berkeley pharmaceutical firm was sued for $365,000 by the parents of two children who were stricken with polio after taking injections of Cutter vaccine in 1955.

The victims were Anne Elizabeth Gottsdanker, 8, of Santa Barbara, Calif., who sought $300,000, and James Phipps, 4, of Monrovia, Calif., who asked $65,000 damages.

Interpretation

He explained that under the interpretation of the preliminary approval, the city would first have to obtain an industrial prospect and then appeal to the federal government stating the purpose of its request.

"But if we receive final approval in Washington now we will be able to get the land first and use it as a selling point for bringing in industry."

Flares, Signals Raise Hopes For Weather Crew

GUAM, Jan. 18 Saturday (AP)—Reports of flares and faint radio signals raised hopes today for 10 airmen whose B-50 weather reconnaissance plane disappeared in a typhoon 600 miles north of Guam four days ago.

The U.S. ammunition ship Fire-drake reported sighting flares at 1:58 a.m. today in the search area. Maj. Pete Scoglund of the 79th Air Rescue Squadron said two red flares and one white were observed in the same general area at 2:35 a.m.

The Navy destroyer escort Moore and an air rescue plane both reported hearing a radio distress call, possibly coming from a hand-operated radio of the type carried by the missing aircraft.

Mild Temperatures Expected In Area

Pleasantly mild temperatures with partly cloudy skies are forecast for the Monroe area today, with cloudy skies and some showers expected tomorrow.

High and low temperatures in the area yesterday were recorded at 62 and 33, while Thursday's readings were 53 and 32.

Cloudy and colder is the outlook for the Arkansas area today and tomorrow.

Inter-Com Foils Kidnap Plot By Dallas Negroes

DALLAS (UP)—A Negro man and two Negro women were charged today with conspiring to kidnap the seven-year-old son of a Dallas businessman.

One of the suspects worked as a maid in the home of the businessman, Robert Lansburgh, and the plot failed because Mrs. Lansburgh and her mother, Mrs. Marcus Levi, overheard the plan on an inter-communication system in their home.

Charges were filed against Ralph Pryor, 38, Ruby Lee Armstrong, 24, and Dorothy Jimerson, 26, all of Dallas. They were being held in jail.

Homicide Capt. Will Fritz said the trio planned to kidnap the boy, Robbie, 7, and hold him for $100,000 ransom.

Ruby Lee Armstrong worked as a maid in the Lansburgh home and lived in servants' quarters behind the house. Fritz said Mrs. Levi and Mrs. Lansburgh became suspicious of the trio, turned on the inter-com system and listened to a conversation.

"The boss lady (Mrs. Levi) has lots of money and the way to get it is to kidnap her grandson," Mrs. Levi lives with her daughter.

Police said there was no actual effort made to kidnap the boy. The conspiracy charge carries a

AGAINST CUTTER LAB

$139,000 Awarded To Polio Victims

OAKLAND, Calif. (UP)—A jury of four men and eight women Friday night absolved Cutter Laboratories of charges of negligence for allowing live polio virus to get into its Salk vaccine, but found it guilty of breach of warranty and awarded $139,000 damages to two child victims.

The jury returned its verdict after about 16 hours of deliberation in the court of Superior Judge Thomas Ledwich to wind up a test trial lasting eight weeks.

The Berkeley pharmaceutical firm was sued for $365,000 by the parents of two children who were stricken with polio after taking injections of Cutter vaccine in 1955.

The victims were Anne Elizabeth Gottsdanker, 8, of Santa Barbara, Calif., who sought $300,000, and James Phipps, 4, of Monrovia,

Program Funds Near Exhaustion

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17 (AP)—The Agriculture Department called a halt today on signing up farmers to retire cotton land under the acreage reserve part of the soil bank.

Officials explained this action was necessary to avoid going into the red on the half billion dollar surplus control program.

Under the acreage reserve—which the administration proposes to ditch next year—payments are made to farmers who retire all or part of their planting allotments from wheat, cotton, corn, rice and tobacco. The idea is to hold down production until surpluses can be reduced.

So many more cotton farmers want to take part in the program that the department fears it won't have enough money to pay all of them.

Interest in the cotton acreage reserve is much greater than officials had expected. They recalled cotton crop losses late in the season, last year and said many farmers are looking to the acreage reserve as a sort of insurance against possible crop losses this year.

The cotton payments average $58.95 an acre.

Of the half billion dollars authorized for the acreage reserve by Congress, 178 million dollars has been allotted for cotton. The cotton share is being apportioned among cotton states and counties.

The department instructed its county officers to sign no more agreements until it can check on just how much of the 178 million dollars has been obligated.

May Take Week

Officials said this check may take a week. Meanwhile, county officers have been asked to keep a list—in the order of their application—of other farmers wanting to take part. Those on this list will be included later if funds are available.

After the check is made, it may be, officials said, that a number of counties will still have unobligated funds that would permit acceptance of additional agreements.

There is a possibility, officials said, that the whole system of allotting the money may have to be revised. The department has been operating on the basis of first come, first served. There has been no limit—save the legal $3.—

Need For Repair On Parish Roads Voiced By Juror

"Roads in Ward 5, outside the West Monroe city limits, really need improvement, and I'm in favor of a program which would bring about good road conditions in that area," commented M. W. Montgomery, president of the Ouachita Parish Police Jury.

Montgomery made the statement last night, when discussing the proposal issued yesterday by three Ward 5 police jurors, to improve 135.6 miles of streets and roads in the ward.

Tom E. Hicks, Ollie Carter and Percy Nichols made public the project after a long time of study and research. Estimated cost of the program would be $1,452,000, to be financed through a 3.66 millage increase on property. Hicks said last night that additional plans will be released within 10 days.

Montgomery stated that money obtained for such a project could be used only for that program. Stressing that they desire to

2-Man Satellite Visualized As Development Of Future

By DR. L. M. LEVITT
Director, Fels Planetarium

Last week we described the GRIFFON, the first long range rocket transport. This week we will describe the NOMAD, first true space ship, as G. Harry Stine visualizes it in his admirable book "Rocket Power and Space Flight."

The development of the GRIFFON will not be wasted. A modified GRIFFON will become the final stage of the NOMAD — the interim manned satellite. The concept of this two-man satellite is ingenious and unique. Let's examine the details.

The first stage of the NOMAD will be a modified first stage of an ICBM.

In the present ICBM's the first stage consists of three motors. One motor is integral with the first stage and the other two are detachable and are jettisoned after they have exhausted their fuel.

The NOMAD first stage consists of five motors. One will be integral with the first stage and the other four will be jettisoned after the fuel has gone.

Shortcomings of chemical propellants necessitate the use of the above staging. The use of new high energy fuels may reduce the number of motors in the cluster.

In addition to this series staging there will also be parallel staging in which the bottom half of the fuselage will be a solid fuel rocket to be jettisoned after use.

Even after this has been exhausted there will still be fuel left for the return trip to the earth.

Vision of Future

Now in our imaginations let us move to, say, 1967 and to the rocket launching center at Cape Canaveral. A huge 180-foot, 300-ton rocket stands on a platform ready for the signal which will send it into the sky.

After the final and dramatic countdown a million pounds of thrust lifts the giant into the air. It rises slowly but, as the fuels burn, begins to accelerate.

At the end of 90 seconds the NOMAD becomes invisible to the eye. Reaching an altitude of about 20 miles, it sheds the four auxiliary rocket motors and continues its climb, firing the center one.

The acceleration, which reached a peak of four g's before the jettisoning, now falls to a nominal level but the ship continues to climb.

Four minutes after its launching the NOMAD has attained speed of 15,000 feet per second. It is 50 miles high and rising at a 45 degree angle. At this point the single motor quits. The passengers are in free-fall.

The rocket continues to coast up and finally reaches peak altitude — 300 miles. On signal the pilots prepare to fire the solid fuel booster underneath the GRIFFON — the final stage — and some of the residual fuel in the GRIFFON's tanks.

A check indicates the injection point of the orbit is correct and instantly the other motors begin firing — this time to bring the final stage to circular velocity, 26,500 feet a second.

Things to Come

Author Stine figures the men can stay in the orbit for 1,000 hours or about 10 days. By this time they will have exhausted their provisions and atmosphere and must return to the earth.

The GRIFFON will be reversed with tiny jets. First the exhaust jets will fire in the direction of motion. This will slow the ship and instantly the ship will begin falling — spiraling — toward the earth.

The final maneuver will be to bring the ship in for a landing. This should not be difficult for it will have been performed many times by the same pilots.

Thus, after 1,000 hours in space the two men will step from the satellite to deliver their studies and records and finally to acquaint the space medicine doctors with their reactions to gravity free space.

The concept of the GRIFFON, and the NOMAD which houses the GRIFFON, is a novel one. The man who conceived it is a professional with intimate knowledge of what is going on in the field.

He could be wrong, but this writer doubts it. This writer believes Mr. Stine has shown the shape of things to come.

IN DISTRICT COURT

More Than Fifty Cases Are Heard

In an apparent crackdown on operation of motor vehicle while under the influence of intoxicating liquors, Judge David I. Garrett sentenced one person to one year in the state penitentiary at Angola and two others to four months in the parish jail. Six others received fines after pleading guilty to the charge yesterday.

In addition three cases of drunk driving were continued until a later date and bonds in two cases were called.

The drunk driving charges were part of more than fifty cases brought into Fourth District Court for arraignment, sentence or trial.

Sentenced to the state prison was Ray P. Gullette, who pleaded guilty to being a third offender. Fined $400 and give a four-month jail sentence were William B. Brown and John Willie Ellis.

Given the $300 fine or 60 days in jail were Lavon Plummer, Estelle H. Smith, Mrs. Elaine F. Dove, George Ridgely, Joe H. Flunder, Billy John Bowers, and Woodrow W. Williams.

Set for trial, after pleading not guilty to the driving while intoxicated charge, was Joe N. Taylor.

Pleas Heard

In other action, Judge Garrett heard guilty pleas entered in eleven felony cases, ranging from theft to forgery and removing mortgaged property. Remanded for sentence were Aubrey E. Tullos, charged with simply burglary of the USSrey Lumber Company; Willie Williams, two counts of attempted simple burglary; Garner F. York, theft of a radio; Richard D. Thomas, II, simple burglary; Ernest Harrison Jr., and Norma June Wright, five counts of forgery; and Cecil Thames, removing mortgaged property out of the state.

Pleading not guilty to a felony theft charge was Buford C. Hand, whose trial was set for February 21.

Other not guilty pleas to felony counts included: J. P. Kelly, theft of $388, set for Feb. 20; J. C. Lewis, theft by check of $50, Feb. 20; and Charles Lisenby, receiving stolen tools, valued at $150, Feb. 21.

Judge Garrett overruled a motion to quash the charge against Cary Arthur Trammell. He is charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of intoxicating beverages and being a third offender. The attorney for the defendant filed an exception following the ruling. The trial was set for February 3.

Set for arguments on February were hearings in the gambling charges against Fred L. Barnes, Shady Wall and Steve E. Moore. None pressed in yesterday's session were three charges Charles Wayne Borden, carnal knowledge of a juvenile; Charles M. Ruemker, Jr., negligent homicide; and Ray P. Gullette, operation of a motor vehicle while intoxicated.

(This last charge was a duplicate of another charge to which Gullette entered a guilty plea.)

Anna Jo Bawcom changed a previous plea of not guilty to guilty and was remanded for sentence. She was charged with unlawful sale of central nervous system stimulants. A pre-sentence investigation was ordered in the case.

Louis Palmer was tried, found guilty of driving while intoxicated and fined $350 or 60 days in jail. Bond was called on Lionel Lee and Nathan C. Roberts, each charged with driving while intoxicated. Neither appeared in court.

Trial for Joseph Brown, charged as a second offender on a drunk driving offense, was continued until a later date.

On charges of disturbing the peace, McKinley Williams, William B. Brown, James J. Dodson and Joe N. Taylor were each fined $25. Marshall O. Smith drew 10 days in the parish jail.

Fined $25 each on reckless driving charges were Allen Douglas

LSU To Hold Chemistry Symposium

Nine renowned chemists will lecture at the four-day meeting. Among them will be Dr. A. J. P. Martin, London, England, Nobel Prize winner for developing gas-liquid chromatography, used in detecting air pollution; Dr. Herbert Weiss of the University of Vienna, who won the first Feigl and Hardy Intox.

Mrs. Elaine F. Dove, who had been remanded for sentence on a charge of driving without a license, was fined $25 or 30 days in jail.

Willie Lee Breakfield will be tried on Feb. 28 on a charge of simple battery.

Bond was called on Boyd E. Delcamp, accused of reckless driving.

On a speeding charge, Dennis Hales was fined $25. Gerald C. Martin will be tried on Jan. 24, on charges of reckless driving and hit and run driving.

Robert Lee White was fined $50 for simple battery. Fined $10 each for disturbing the peace were John H. Jacobs and Thomas J. Jordan. Remanded for presentence investigation on charges of vagrancy were Edgar W. Herick and James Rocher.

For removing mortgaged property from Ouachita parish, T. C. Robinson was sentenced to 30 days in jail. William H. Thomas, who was found guilty of vagrancy, was sentenced to the time he has served since his arrest.

Prize for his work in micro-chemistry, and Dr. Clark E. Bricker of Princeton University. Dr. Bricker will present for the first time a new field of chemistry, "photon titrimetry," which deals with the measurement of light necessary to cause chemical reactions.

Unique In South
The LSU Symposium, unique in the South, was initiated eleven years ago by Boyd Professor Philip W. West, and has consisted only drawn to the campus top men in the field of analytical chemistry.

Dr. Paul J. Delahay, Boyd Professor at LSU and an expert in corrosion of metals, will be one of the speakers.

Other lecturers will be Dr. R. N. Adams of the University of Kansas; Dr. Hugh F. Beegley of the Jones and Laughlin Steel Corp., Pittsburgh; Dr. Louis Meites of the Polytechnic Institute of Brooklyn; Dr. A. Walsh of Melbourne, Australia; and Dr. Frank Welcher of the University of Indiana.

Among other topics to be discussed are gases in metals, ring oven developments, absorption flame spectrophotometry, and recent developments in organic reagents for inorganic analysis.

All the lectures will be given in Coates Laboratories. In addition, there will be informal discussion and roundtable conferences. Various scientific supply houses will display instruments and equipment used in analytical processes.

Heart Council Holds Opener For Campaign

Designating February as "Heart Month" - a special time for the drive which aids research into heart ailments - the Ouachita Parish Heart Council held its kickoff session last night.

Members attended a dinner meeting in the Rendezvous and heard plans for the drive discussed by Mrs. George P. Forman, chairman of the council, and Dean William R. Smith, fund drive chairman.

Mrs. J. B. Kugler, Council member from Monroe, stated that a special office will be opened at 124 S. Grand street as a headquarters during February.

Named as chairman of "Heart Sunday" was Mrs. Corbin Turpin, who will head the house-to-house canvass on the third or fourth Sunday of February.

Volunteer workers will make the canvass, and all persons who are interested in helping in the vital work are requested to contact Mrs. Turpin, or the Heart Fund office after Feb. 1.

Seven Council members from Monroe attended last night's session, in addition to officials named. They included Paul Betts, district chairman; Dr. J. D. Kelly, Irvin Hodge, Dr. Cyril Vancey, Mrs. E. N. Jackson, Mrs. Josephine Tucker and Mrs. Fred W. Barlow. Pat Mitchell, field representative from the Louisiana Heart Association, was also present at the dinner.

Council members attending from other towns included Mr. and Mrs. Fred Preaus of Farmerville, Saul Snyder, Bastrop, and E. L. Mobley, Jonesboro.

Two Teen-Agers Suffer Injuries In Auto Wreck

Two teen-agers were taken to St. Francis Hospital last night after their car overturned in a curve just north of Perryville on U. S. 165. A third occupant escaped.

Bishop Johnston III, 17, of Sterlington and Miss Landrea Ducote, 16, of 2308 Jasmine St., Monroe, were at the hospital where Johnston was reported to have cuts about the head and face. Miss Ducote suffered minor abrasions.

According to Miss Ducote, Johnston was apparently blinded by an approaching car when his northbound vehicle skidded to the right, back across the highway, and overturned on the shoulder of the road. She said Johnston and Ron Updegraff, uninjured, were thrown onto the ground.

State Police were completing investigation last night.

New 'Curb Cops' To Go Into Use Here On Monday

A new form of police patrol will go into effect in the City of Monroe Monday following the installation of a dozen "Curb Cops" on DeSiard today.

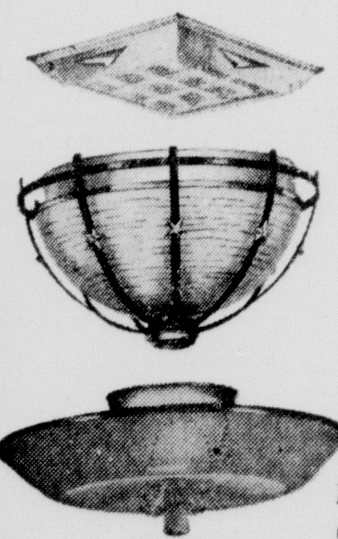

Designed to assist both the motorist and the Monroe Police Department, the mechanical police men will be installed in three blocks of DeSiard.

Persons receiving tickets for overparking can place the $1 fine in an envelope and stuff it in the "Curb Cops." The envelope will be made available with the new "Cops."

The boxes will be installed in the 100, 200 and 300 blocks of DeSiard. Four cops will be installed to each block, two on each side of the street.

The "Curb Cops" were made available to the police department by the approval of the city council.

Policy Of Scarcity

What seems likely to happen is that cotton may price itself out of the market even more than it has before. This would be a serious thing for the cotton farmers, for the cotton textile mills and for the many people it supports.

Dogs Rate Higher

Postmen have never been allowed to stomp dogs or whack them with a stick or even kick them in the mug when the dogs sink their teeth in the calves of the postmen's legs. Some effort was made to induce the postmen to court the friendship of the dogs by carrying along choice tidbits. This did not work too well, either because the postmen could not carry along a big enough supply for all of the dogs or because some of the dogs preferred nipping legs to chomping tidbits.

Few little farmers have been able to survive under the control program. Many of the big farmers, operating on a mechanized basis, have been able to make big money. Is it time to place these big business farmers on the same basis as other businessmen?

A news dispatch from the French government tourist office in North America, located in New York City, says there is good news for dogs, as well as cats, who choose to spend their vacations traveling in France—accompanied by their owners, of course.

All trans-Atlantic shiplines and airlines have accommodations for dogs and cats. Once in France, these creatures may participate freely in all activities of a tourist nature such as strolling down the Champs-Elysees, visiting haute couture houses or dining at the Ritz on ladies' laps.

Every dog has his day.

In short, First Minister Lim is an educated, popular, modern, democratic Oriental who is trying to find a way to govern a province which lies in the path of onrushing Communism. Is he grateful for American aid? For British training in government? For the SEATO and ANZUS defense pacts? No he is primarily grateful to Japan for loosening the hold of the Western empire upon this region. Without the blows which imperialist Japan

There is another Oriental power, as it seems to a visiting reporter, to whom the Southeast Asian peoples are grateful. It is Red China. They are not so outspoken about this - least, not outside the Americans and British. But Europeans who run the businesses here know of this grateful feeling to the Communist colossus in the north. # Program Funds Near Exhaustion

000 ceiling set by Congress—to the amount of land an individual farm may retire.

It may be found to be advisable, officials said, to probe county funds among all farmers wanting to participate. This would require that some farmers who already have signed agreements be required to cut down on their retired acres so their neighbors may enter the program.

Under present rules, farmers who participated last year were given no advantage or priority over those who did not. Officials said they are considering changing this rule to give such farmers the priority. However, no decision on these possible changes in regulations will be made before next Thursday, officials said.

No steps have been taken to halt signing of agreements with growers of spring wheat, corn, rice and tobacco because there is no present indication of a possible oversubscription.

Total assessment for property in Ward 5, outside the West Monroe limits, is $13,229,200, with $4,079,690 under homestead exemption.

The jurors revealed that if the program were to be put through on a one-year basis, it would cost 11 additional mills. However, by extending it over three years, only 3.66 mills would be added, with public approval.

They added that the improvement would result in convenience to all residents and would be well justified particularly for industrial workers.

Family Misses Execution Of Slayer Wetzel

Wetzel was convicted in the April 1953 prison field slaying of Edgar (Sonny) McGraw, young

McComb, Miss., taxi driver who had turned state's evidence in an armed robbery trial. Wetzel's trial brought out that he did not know McGraw. The only motive indicated was gangland revenge.

Gangland revenge was the only motive developed for the other slaying in which Wetzel was charged but never tried—the shotgun killing of Lonnie Russ at a Gulfport, Miss., motel in August, 1952.

Wetzel's brother, Frank, slept through the execution in his Raleigh, N.C. jail cell where he is awaiting trial for murder. Frank was convicted last week of killing a North Carolina highway patrolman and is to be tried in the death of another.

Before William Wetzel went to his death he preached a sermon to convicts in the "punishment block," a section where convicts being disciplined are kept.

"He preached a sermon that beat any preacher I know," one of the convicts told reporters. Wetzel's lawyer, pleading that his client had accepted Christ, had asked that he be spared to become a prison chaplain.

Wetzel's many books were distributed among other prisoners. His more personal possessions, including two well-thumbed Bibles, were given to his family. At the condemned man's instructions, the palamas he wore to the gas chamber, and $10, went to a convict friend.

Both Hicks and Canterbury offered space in their family plots for Wetzel's interment. Services were set for 2 p.m. tomorrow at Coleman funeral home in Indianapolis, the county seat where Wetzel was tried.

Burial was set for the city cemetery in Indianapolis in a plot which Mayor Tom Pitts said the city will provide.

Because Wetzel is a World War II veteran, part of the burial expenses will be borne by the Veterans Administration.

Mount Vernon Man Dies Of Gun Wound

A 48-year-old Mount Vernon man, Charles Seyman George, was found shot to death with a 12-gauge shotgun in the bedroom of his home yesterday.

Ouachita Parish Coroner Dr. J. T. French ruled the death "suicide by shooting."

French said George "had evidently set down in a chair in front of a heater, placed a 12-gauge shotgun against his left chest and pulled the trigger with a stick."

George's daughter, Mrs. James Carter, and her husband discovered him dead about 3:30 p.m. yesterday, French said.

French set the time of the shooting at shortly after 7:30 a.m. after Mrs. George left for work and their son, Douglas, 14, had gone to school.

Funeral services will be from Mount Vernon Church in West Monroe at 2:30 p.m. Sunday. Interment will follow in the church cemetery under the direction of Hixson Funeral Home here.

Survivors include his widow Mrs. Clara George; two sons, Hansford George and Douglas George; two daughters, Mrs. Mildred Carter, and Mrs. James Carter.

Four men were transferred to the state penitentiary at Angola yesterday to begin sentences for theft, forgery, or burglary.

Sheriff Bailey Grant identified the four as Chester S. Porter, 35, sentenced to two years for felony theft, plus 35 days from date of incarceration.

Conley Crabner, 39, will also begin a 2-year sentence on a felony theft charge.

James L. Pine, 43, drew a 2-1/2-year sentence in the parish year sentence on a forgery while charge, and Almon Chester, 19, received a 3-year sentence on each of seven counts of burglary, the sentences to run concurrently.

According to Howard, both officials indicated that they would approve "several hundred designated acres" for the purpose of industry. The airstrip would not be included.

All previous attempts to obtain Selman Field for the city failed. The city first appealed to the Defense Department to release the recapture clause on Selman Field and later asked the government to sell the field.

City officials recently requested use of the land around the airstrip for industrial purposes.

"From the indication yesterday, the city won't have to go through the channel of obtaining approval for the land after we line up an industrial prospect," Howard said.

"Of course, it's subject to final approval in Washington," he explained.

Meeting with city officials yesterday, representing the CAA, were Tracy Hill of Jackson, Miss. and Charles Hance of Ft. Worth, Tex. They made an inspection of the field.

following the reign of a military dictatorship.

Willauer said the military dictatorship, known as the Junta had promised the people it would establish a democracy after it Lozana.

Willauer said Honduras is an important economic and political country to the U.S., "about as important as any other country there is."

He said Honduras is being used as a trial country to experiment with the conversion of the infantry into engineer units with the objective to have the army contribute to the welfare of the country in a direct fashion.

Willauer said Honduras, like other Central American countries, is not completely safe from the threat of communism. "The Reds," he said, "are very active in the Caribbean."

"They always talk about knocking out dictatorships, but what they really don't like is a democracy."

Willauer, from Nantucket, Mass., recalled the days when he and General Chennault were partners in the Civil Air Transport airlines.

Hibiscus Run Pulls Classy 3-Year-Olds

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 17 (P)—Some of the nation's most promising 3-year-olds, pointing for the Flaming Stakes, Florida Derby and other rich races to follow, make their first appearance of the year in the six furlong $20,000 added Hibiscus Stakes at Hialeah Park tomorrow.

Fred W. Hoper's Alhambra, one of the nation's leading 2-year-olds last summer, and Elkcarn stable's Hubcap, top Florida-bred of his age, head the field of ten entered in Hialeah's first week-end feature. The track opened today for a 40-day run.

Alhambra, who was disqualified from first money in the Arlington Futurity last July after his stablemate, Olymar, fouled other horses in the race, shares top weight of 122 pounds and will be ridden by Howard Grant, leading jockey at Tropical Park with 41 winners in 43 days.

Hubcap, also at 122 pounds, will have Ted Atkinson up. Hubcap won the Dade County Handicap at Tropical Park last month in competition with some others who will go against him tomorrow.

Others in the Hibiscus, their weights and riders, are:

Nisht Amool, 122, Sam Boulmetis; Terra Firma, 122, L. Gilligan; Belleau Chief, 114, P. J. Bailey; Jimmer, 122, Eric Guerin; Talent Show, 114, Steve Brooks; Yemen, 110, Willie Hartack; Arnold H., 110, M. Sorrentino; Bolero U., 122, Robert Ussery.

The race will be the seventh on a nine-race card and post time for the feature will be 3:45 p.m. (CST). The feature will be telecast to a nationwide audience by the National Broadcasting Company from 3:30 to 4 p.m. (CST). All of Hialeah's Saturday feature races will be telecast by NBC, with Chick Hearn doing the color and Fred Caposella calling the race.

Foes Of City Park For Pels Appeal Suit

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 17 (P)—Property owners who oppose use of the City Park Stadium by the New Orleans Pelicans baseball team won the right today to take their suit to the Orleans Parish Court of Appeals.

The appeal was granted by Civil District Judge Alexander Rainold who on Dec. 30 dismissed a suit for an injunction to bar the New Orleans City Park Improvement Assn. from leasing the stadium to the homeless Southern Assn. team.

The suit was brought by Park Place Assn., a group of property owners near the stadium. The organization argued that the City Park Improvement Assn. usurped the functions of the municipal authority.

In his dismissal, the judge held the improvement association was not a private corporation to manage the park. He also held use of the stadium for professional baseball would be a proper use of the stadium and would not do violence to the city zoning laws.

Pelican Stadium, home of the AA club since 1915, was demolished after the team lost its lease. The site will be used for a motel.

ahead 19-17 with eight minutes gone in the first half, and the Tigers were never headed.

With Merle and Jim Crisco hitting from the outside the Tigers ran up a 29-19 advantage in the next five minutes. Tulane was unable to find the range and was unusually poor at the free throw line.

LSU showed a 41-29 halftime lead, but the Tulane offense perked up after the intermission and the Greenies cut the margin to 61-57 with about four minutes left in the game.

But Merle hit for a basket and two free throws by Kenny Graves gave LSU all the edge it needed.

Merle was the top scorer with 19 points, 11 of them in the first half. Sophomore Louie Anderson anchored the Tulane attack with 17 points.

The victory was LSU's fifth against 10 losses and its first in the SEC in five starts. The setback evened Tulane's overall record at 7-7 and dropped its SEC mark to 2-3.

Magnolia Park Loses Court Round In Suit

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 17 (P)—Magnolia Park, Inc., today lost a round in its plan to reorganize and continue operation of the race track in Jefferson Parish.

Edmond Talbot Sr., federal bankruptcy referee, recommended dismissal of the Magnolia petition on grounds it was not filed in good faith. The petition was filed under the bankruptcy act.

Talbot, acting as a special master in the case, submitted his report to U. S. District Judge J. Skelly Wright who must affirm the report.

The referee also recommended that Judge Wright withdraw his stay order stopping all litigation against any of the parties involved in the case.

The Magnolia group, after a nine-day flat racing season, was forced to close late last year when creditors demanded payment.

In his decision, talbot said it was his opinion that Magnolia was hopelessly insolvent and that nowhere in the picture was there any possible source to realize some $750,000 which it would take to pay off the track's $520,000 in debts and an additional $200,000 needed to place facilities in operating condition.

65 GOOD ENOUGH

Wininger, Rosburg Grab Tijuana Lead

TIJUANA, Mexico (UP)—Bobby Rosburg and Bo Wininger, seasoned professionals with a special liking for wide-open courses, sizzled with 7-under-par 65s Friday to tie for the first-round lead in the $17,000 Tijuana Open golf tournament.

While nearly two score of shot-makers fired par or better on the 7,300-yard Tijuana Country Club course, Rosburg and Wininger took a two stroke lead over long-hitting George Bayer who had 67 and finished three ahead of Fred Hawkins, Stan Leonard and Jerry Barber, each with 68.

A huge field of 153 teed off in near-perfect weather in the third big tournament of the year and many of them were just getting their games back into shape after a holiday lay-off.

But Rosburg and Wininger were something extra special. The bespectacled Rosburg, from Napa, Calif., had a 34-31. He had seven birdies, two of them with putts of 25 and 35 feet.

Following the leaders, each with 69 came John Barnum, Grand Rapids, Mich., Roberto de Vicenzo

Small Victory For Comiskey In Club Fuss

CHICAGO, Jan. 17 (P)—Chuck Comiskey, co-vice president of the Chicago White Sox today won a minor victory in the Comiskey family court dispute over club control.

Superior Judge Donald S. McKinlay dismissed a defense motion to throw out Comiskey's suit to limit the White Sox board of directors to four members.

The petition for dismissal was brought by Roy Egan, White Sox counsel and a board member with Chuck and his sister, Mrs. Dorothy Comiskey Rigney, club secretary - treasurer.

Egan contends the board may include five members which, under Illinois cumulative stock voting law, could cause Chuck to be outvoted, 3 to 2, on any controversial matter.

Judge McKinlay prefaced his ruling with a plea for harmony in the ruling family of the White Sox. He warned that lack of harmony would upset the White Sox chances for success in the coming season. Comiskey's suit probably will go to trial next month.

Actually, this suit is a follow-up to another suit by the 32-year-old Comiskey to force his estate, Dorothy, executrix of the estate of the late Sox president, Mrs. Grace Comiskey, to release his 1,731 shares of inherited stock.

The previous suit has been continued in probate court, presumably awaiting a statement on estate taxes which must be filed by March 10.

Today, Comiskey's attorney, Robert J. Cantwell, Jr., charged Egan was endeavoring to split Chuck and Dorothy. "There wouldn't be any fight between brother and sister if it were not for Egan," Cantwell said.

Egan's attorney, Michael F. Ryan, said it was Chuck's intention to gain control of the ball club. However, he added there was no attempt or any threat of any attempt to deprive Chuck of his rights, to remove him as a co-vice president, or in any way to inflict injury to his rights.

Dorothy, who was willed 500 more shares of stock than Chuck is married to former Sox pitching star John Rigney, now the other club vice president.

Jobless Jimmy Foxx Has Offers From Everywhere

By JOE REICHLER
NEW YORK, Jan. 17 (AP)—Jimmy Foxx, jobless and destitute after dissipating his quarter of a million dollar baseball earnings, is looking forward to what he terms "the start of a new life" at the age of 50.

The former American league home run and batting king, brought here for a television show after it had been revealed he was broke and unable to pay his rent, told The Associated Press that offers of jobs and financial help had come after news of his plight had been made public.

"My wife just called me from Miami," Foxx said, as tears came to his eyes, "and she informed me of the many telegrams that arrived this morning. A number of them contain offers of jobs. I can't tell you how overjoyed I am. . . and how grateful."

"It's finally beginning to look like my luck has changed. I don't mind telling you I've been broke for the past 10 years. Oh, I've had odd jobs here and there, but never anything that amounted to much. All I want is to get a job that will enable me to support my wife and three children. I owe it to them more than to myself. They've been wonderful through it all."

Foxx second only to the immortal Babe Ruth in the rankings of the greatest sluggers in baseball history, admitted he didn't have a dime until yesterday although he earned more than $250,000 during his 21 year major league career.

"I don't want to cry over spilled milk," the former Maryland mauler said. "Maybe I have some regrets but it's too late now. I lost all my money—I just blew it—every cent of it. It was nobody's fault but my own. For myself, I don't mind, but my wife and children have suffered enough. I'd like to do something for them."

"Things have been going from bad to worse for me. But I kept my troubles to myself. The time just came when I had to throw my pride out of the window. It's all right to have pride, but not when you're flat on your back. It's no use hiding it any more. I'm broke, flat broke. When I had it, I always helped others. Now I need help. I'm not looking for a handout. All I want is a job, one that will enable me to support my family."

Foxx never spent a day in the minor leagues. He began his career at the age of 17, with the Athletics in 1925.

"My first year's salary was $2,000," he recalled with a smile. "Connie Mack, who managed me, owned the club, raised me to $2,500 the next year, $3,000 the following year, then $5,000, then $7,500, then $10,000. In 1930, I signed a three-year contract calling for $50,000. When that contract expired, Mr. Mack raised me to $18,000 for '31 and $25,000 for '32. I had captured the triple crown the previous year, winning the batting, home run and runs batted in championships."

"When I was traded to Boston after the 1935 season, Mr. Tom Yawkey, the owner of the Red Sox, tore up my contract and gave me a new one for $25,000. The most I ever made in one season was $27,000, after I led the league in batting and drove in 175 runs in 1938."

One of the many job offers today came from a firm in Long Island, N.Y., which would provide Double-X, as he was familiarly known in his heyday with a transportation job and a four-room apartment, rent free, for the rest of his life. Another offer, also involving transportation, came from Phoenix.

"I'm going to check into all of them," Foxx said gratefully, "and then decide which is best for my family. I've got to think of them first, last and always."

Foxx said that despite his financial trouble he has been happily married for 15 years.

"My wife, Dorothy," Jimmy said, "has been wonderful through all this. I'm happy for her sake, as well as my own, that things appear to be looking up."

Foxx, who in 1932 came within two of equalling Ruth's record of 60 home runs in one season, said he would prefer a job in baseball.

"After all," he said, "baseball is what I know best. I'd like a job as a batting coach. Something along the lines of the jobs held by George Sisler, Rogers Hornsby and Paul Waner."

I think I know a little about hitting and I honestly believe I can help some of the present day hitters."

Lopata First Phil To Sign '58 Contract

PHILADELPHIA (UP)—Stan Lopata, the Philadelphia Phillies' cripple of the year last season, signed his new contract without a hobble Friday, giving the fifth place club a healthier outlook for 1958.

"I feel good, both about my knee and my contract," the brawny catcher said. "The contract calls for much the same as last year."

The full return of Stan's bat, coupled with the off-season acquisition of Wally Post from Cincinnati, made General Manager Roy Haney, optimistic about the Phils chances in 1958.

"We can't help but have an upward movement," Haney said. "We lacked the long ball hitter last season. Lopata and Post should help us a lot offensively."

O'Malley's Squeeze Play Lands Bums In Coliseum

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 17 (AP)—Walter O'Malley's long search for a home field for his transplanted Dodgers baseball club ended today in the 101,000-seat Los Angeles Coliseum.

After a frantic day of secret huddles and a three-hour luncheon meeting, an agreement was reached allowing the Dodgers use of what will be the biggest baseball park, in capacity, for the next two years.

It was O'Malley who broke a long deadlock by offering a proposal that adds about $100,000 a year to the $200,000 he offered the Coliseum Commission earlier in the week.

Outlined by O'Malley at a conference on the hard board seats of the Coliseum during a recess in today's meeting with the commission, the plan provides: A guaranteed annual rental of $20,000, with receipts from concessions credited by the commission to this amount. If the concession income reached $200,000, O'Malley wouldn't have to put up any cash.

In addition, and this was the added touch that produced agreement, O'Malley said he would pay 1 per cent of gross gate receipts and turn over all concession income to the commission for nine games.

The terms for the nine games, which will be the first nine after the opening series with the San Francisco Giants on April 18, are identical to those paid by UCLA, Southern California and the Los Angeles Rams, all of whom play their home football games in the stadium.

This concession by O'Malley overcame objections of the three longtime tenants to the Dodgers getting what they had considered a more favorable deal.

The agreement, greeted jubilantly by the commission and the Dodger staff, climaxed a long, nerve-racking series of negotiations over where the Dodgers would play until their permanent park is constructed.

O'Malley started eyeing the coliseum as soon as he transferred here from Brooklyn last year, but preliminary talks proved so unfruitful he opened negotiations for the Rose Bowl in nearby Pasadena.

The Rose Bowl deal foundered when O'Malley learned it would cost $750,000 to convert the stadium into a ball park. The Dodgers president was on the verge of playing home games in the 22,000-seat Wrigley Field, former minor league home of the Los Angeles Angels.

He even called a news conference to announce this development, then disclosed at the last minute that the door to the Coliseum was still open a crack and he was going to make one more effort to wedgie his way in.

In a series of meetings that began earlier this week with the Coliseum commission, O'Malley first increased his offer to $200,000 annual guarantee and then added the final concession today.

Along the line, the opposition of the football tenants to the location of the baseball diamond gave way and the diamond will be laid out in the west end of the stadium as O'Malley desired.

With home plate at the west end, the batters will have no problem with sun in their eyes. At an earlier stage of negotiation, everyone but O'Malley favored having home plate at the east end.

Pressed for details of the diamond layout of the huge bowl, O'Malley said these may be divulged tomorrow, when he's called a news conference for 10 a.m.

Also overcome in the final conferences was the objection of investment firms underwriting a $6,000,000 Sports Arena to be built next to the coliseum and managed by the Coliseum commission. The bankers held that any change in commission policies covering rental and concession would cause a re-evaluation of the financing of the arena, which could take months. However, in the final agreement, it was specifically written that the terms granted O'Malley are to apply only through the 1959 baseball season after which the original policy will be reinstated.

During the two years the Dodgers are in tenancy, UCLA, USC and the Rams will set a rent reduction from 10 per cent of gross receipts to 5 per cent.

O'Malley emerged from the long meeting to announce that work would get underway immediately in the printing of tickets and the arrangements needed to have the Coliseum ready for the opening game three months from tomorrow.

Looking about the vast stadium, he capped his hands to his head and said "You know what's going to happen now? Opening day it will probably rain."

Still to be settled, is the site of the Dodgers' permanent park. The city will vote June 3 on a proposal to turn 300 acres of city-owned land in Chavez Ravine over to O'Malley in exchange for his Wrigley Field holdings. Should this be approved at the election, O'Malley plans to build a park.

He has said he will spend $10,000,000 for an ultra modern stadium seating some 50,000. Should the ballot measure be rejected, he would have to start looking for some other site.

Calhoun, La. (Special)—The Rebels of West Monroe High School invaded Calhoun last night to sack up a triple header triumph after a pair of mighty close varsity contests. The Rebel quint shaded the Chieftains, 45-41, and the West Monroe girls nosed ahead, 43-41. In a preliminary "B" girls' contest, West Monroe team forged a 30-16 triumph.

Shelby Aults led Coach L. V. Norris' Rebels with 17 points with Larry Lewis and Jerry Grubbs backing him up with 10 points apiece. Youngster Scotty Sims was high scorer for Coach Jerry Lovett's Chieftains with 12 points apiece, and his main support, Louis McIntosh and Jerry Aults, also had 10 points each.

Calhoun will meet the Simsbury cagers here next Friday night.

They said the bone hadn't developed properly from birth and that the result was a weakness in the lower part of the back. They added that could be the reason for the lack of reflexes in Harshman's left foot.

Harshman, who is spending the winter with his father in San Diego, Calif., said he is as puzzled as the next person as to his back condition.

"I've talked to doctors about it," said the converted first baseman, "and they have diagnosed the trouble as a slipped disc. Some have suggested an operation but at present I have no plans for the operation or even where it would be performed."

Commissioner To Arbitrate Dispute

By KEN LYDECKER
CHICAGO (UP)—The trade between the Chicago White Sox and Baltimore Orioles involving southpaw Jack Harshman will go before Commissioner Ford Frick on Sunday.

Frick said he would meet with officials of both clubs in Chicago to discuss Harshman's back ailment which may make it necessary for him to undergo an operation. Should that be the case, the Orioles are asking for another pitcher to take the place of Harshman who went to Baltimore Dec. 3 with outfielder Larry Doby and a minor league player for pitcher Ray Moore, infielder Billy Goodman and outfielder Tito Francona.

White Sox officials admit Harshman had an ailing back ever since he joined the club in 1954 but they said it wasn't serious enough to prevent him from winning 48 games and losing only 34 since.

Last August the White Sox team physician, Dr. John Claridge, reported Harshman was suffering from a "muscle spasm" in the back. It sidelined the lanky lefty for one month but he began pitching batting practice and went the route in beating Cleveland, 2-1, a few days before the season ended.

The White Sox said Vice President Bill Walsingham of the Orioles called Chicago Vice President Charles Comiskey in late December to report Harshman had undergone X-rays at Johns Hopkins Hospital. At that time it was reported Harshman had a slipped disc in his back and that he had no reflexes in the left foot.

The White Sox insist the trade was made in good faith and that they were unaware of Harshman's back condition when the deal was made. The Chicago officials said Dr. Claridge judged that the muscle spasm could be cured by the use of diathermy.

SAYS HIGGINS

Ted Malzone Only Bosox Untouchables

BOSTON (UP)—Boston Red Sox Manager Mike Higgins said Friday that everyone on his club except ageless Ted Williams and flashy third baseman Frank Malzone will be up for swaps during 1958.

"But so far," Higgins disclosed, "we haven't even come close to making a trade." He said the Red Sox have made exploratory trade contacts with every team in the American League.

"We still may be able to make a deal," Higgins told baseball writers here. "Everyone on the club but Williams and Malzone are expendable."

Higgins, visiting from his Dallas, Tex., home, admitted he has been cautious about trading players so far.

"Making trades and deals has become a mania with a lot of people," he said. "The newspapers are full of it. But you can be hurt by a trade, too."

The Red Sox finished third in the American League standings last season. The team's batting average was .257. The New York Yankees and the Chicago White Sox in first and second place posted .270 and .260 hitting marks.

One of the big reasons for the Red Sox' challenging average was the powerful bat of Ted Williams who at the age of 39 led major league hitters with a .388 mark.

"The way he finished the last few weeks last year," Higgins said, "I don't see any reason why he cannot play another full season and have another good year."

Higgins said he would try to get more batting power behind the plate where last season Sammy White and Pete Daley shared the chores. White batted .213 and Daley .225.

"I'd also like to have at least two, maybe three, good left-handers on the pitching staff," he said. "As a matter of fact, who wouldn't?"

The committee called a meeting for Monday to consider the revisions.

It is estimated that the new contract will yield the county slightly more than $400,000 a year. The old contract expired Dec. 31.

Cairnes said the rent would be "considerably in excess of those ever paid by any other baseball club."

Cairnes and the county have been at odds over a new contract for several weeks. He turned down two other proposals as "highly unfavorable."

Wolverines, Cats Regain Cage Pride

CHICAGO (UP)—Wisconsin and Northwestern, two of last season's have-nots, seek to improve their first-division berths in the current Big Ten basketball race Saturday.

The ambitious Wildcats, winners of only four league contests during the 1956-57 campaign, have a chance to move into a share of the lead Saturday afternoon when they meet Michigan State in an afternoon television game at Evanston, Ill.

Northwestern will enter the contest gunning for its third consecutive league win after an opening night setback. A victory over the Spartans (1-1) plus a victory by Iowa over Indiana would move the Wildcats into a share of the lead with Michigan.

The Wolverines and Illinois are not scheduled on Saturday's card. Three of the Big Ten's leading marksmen will see action at Columbus, Ohio, Saturday night, when Ohio State meets Minnesota.

Shooting for the Buckeyes will be big Frank Howard, whose 23.6 per game average has earned him No. 4 ranking among the top scorers in the league. George Kline, the league-leader with a 25.5 mark, and Roger Johnson, who has been hitting at a 20-point per game clip, will play for the Gophers.

Purdue will attempt to get back into the race in a clash with the hot Badgers from Wisconsin, who have won two straight after dropping their opener to Illinois.

FRIENDS RALLY

Jobless Jimmy Foxx Has Offers From Everywhere

By JOE REICHLER
NEW YORK, Jan. 17 (AP)—Jimmy Foxx, jobless and destitute after dissipating his quarter of a million dollar baseball earnings, is looking forward to what he terms "the start of a new life" at the age of 50.

The former American league home run and batting king, brought here for a television show after it had been revealed he was broke and unable to pay his rent, told The Associated Press that offers of jobs and financial help had come after news of his plight had been made public.

"My wife just called me from Miami," Foxx said, as tears came to his eyes. "and she informed me of the many telegrams that arrived this morning. A number of them contain offers of jobs. I can't tell you how overjoyed I am... and how grateful."

"It's finally beginning to look like my luck has changed. I don't mind telling you I've been broke for the past 10 years. Oh, I've had odd jobs here and there, but never anything that amounted to much. All I want is to get a job that will enable me to support my wife and three children. I owe it to them more than to myself. They've been wonderful through it all."

Foxx second only to the immortal Babe Ruth in the rankings of the greatest sluggers in baseball history, admitted he didn't have a dime until yesterday although he earned more than $250,000 during his 21 year major league career.

"I don't want to cry over spilled milk," the former Maryland mauler said. "Maybe I have some regrets but it's too late now. I lost all my money—I just blew it—every cent of it. It was nobody's fault but my own. For myself, I don't mind, but my wife and children have suffered enough. I'd like to do something for them."

"Things have been going from bad to worse for me. But I kept my troubles to myself. The time just came when I had to throw my pride out of the window. It's all right to have pride, but not when you're flat on your back. It's no use hiding it any more. I'm broke, flat broke. When I had it, I always helped others. Now I need help. I'm not looking for a handout. All I want is a job, one that will enable me to support my family."

Foxx never spent a day in the minor leagues. He began his career at the age of 17, with the Athletics in 1925.

"My first year's salary was $2,000," he recalled with a smile. "Connie Mack, who managed and owned the club, raised me to $2,500 the next year, $3,000 the following year, then $5,000, then $7,500, then $10,000. In 1930, I signed a three-year contract calling for $50,000. When that contract expired Mr. Mack raised me to $18,000 for the 1934 and '35 seasons. I had captured the triple crown the previous year, winning the batting, home run and runs batted in championships."

"When I was traded to Boston after the 1935 season, Mr. Tom Yawkey, the owner of the Red Sox, tore up my contract and gave me a new one for $25,000. The most I ever made in any one season was $27,000, after I led the league in batting and drove in 175 runs in 1933."

One of the many job offers to date came from a firm in Long Island, N.Y., which would provide Double-X, as he was familiarly known in his heyday with a transportation job and a four-room apartment, rent free, for the rest of his life. Another offer, also involving transportation, came from Phoenix.

"I'm going to check into all of them," Foxx said gratefully, "and then decide which is best for my family. I've got to think of them. First, last and always."

Foxx said that despite his financial trouble he has been happily married for 15 years.

"My wife, Dorothy," Jimmy said, "has been wonderful through all this. I'm happy for her sake, as well as my own, that things appear to be looking up."

Foxx, who in 1932 came within two of equaling Ruth's record of 60 home runs in one season, said he would prefer a job in baseball.

"After all," he said, "baseball is what I know best. I'd like a job as a batting coach. Something along the lines of the jobs held by George Sisler, Rogers Hornsby and Paul Waner."

I think I know a little about hitting and I honestly believe I can help some of the present day hitters."

Foxx was brought to New York by the Dave Garraway television show. Foxx leaves for Boston tomorrow where he will attend the Boston baseball writer's show next Wednesday.

Clement Warns Hunting Season For Deer Ended

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 17 (AP)—Director F. Lamar Clement of the Wildlife and Fisheries Commission today cautioned hunters in four parishes that the deer season has ended.

At a meeting in Monroe last Monday, the commission ratified extension of the deer season in St. Tammany, St. John, Livingston and Tangipahoa parishes until Jan. 1, 1958. But the action was only a formal record on the season already closed.

made to the next SEC session.

Members agreed to permit basketball coaches to issue equipment and have physical examinations for players a day before the official start of practice. Football coaches already have this privilege.

The conference left standing a rule that SEC basketball games must be played on the home court of the host team where facilities are adequate.

SEC representatives also voted that no team may compete in a post-season game without conference permission with the exception of games already meeting SEC requirements. This was described as a minor clarification of regulations already on the books.

"I feel good, both about my knee and my contract," the brawny catcher said. "The contract calls for much the same as last year."

The full return of Stan's bat, coupled with the off-season acquisition of Wally Post from Cincinnati, made General Manager Roy Hamer, optimistic about the Phils' chances in 1958.

"We can't help but have an upward movement," Hamer said. "We lacked the long ball hitter last season. Lopata and Post should help us a lot offensively."

Foreign Stars Shoot At U.S. In K.C. Games

BOSTON (UP)—Foreign track stars will be out to steal the thunder from Americans at the 32nd annual K of C invitation games in the Garden Saturday night.

Competitors from Europe include high jumper Zbigniew Lewandowski and middle distance runner Zbigniew Orywal, both of Poland; Big Ten vaulting champion Eeles Landstrom of Finland and Villanova's Ron Delany of Ireland.

Delany, Olympic gold medal winner and a heavy favorite to win the O'Reilly Mile, first appeared in Boston in the 1,000-yard run, beating off competition with a record-breaking 2:10.2.

The mile race Saturday night will be his first K of C start in two years. Illness following his welcome home in Dublin after the 1956 Olympics at Melbourne kept him out of the running.

Yugoslavia miler Velisa Mugosa is expected to give the wiry Irishman a rugged race along with Burr Grim, ICA4 outdoor champion and recent winner in the Sugar Bowl Mile.

Mugosa has turned in a 4:02 mile while Grim was clocked at 4:10 in the ICA4 indoor run. The Maryland speedster finished second to Delany in Chicago last year in one of the season's fastest miles.

The 1,000-yard run will have among the starters Charley Jenkins, Olympic gold medal winner, Fred Montour of Michigan, Tom Carroll of Yale and William Anderson of Harvard.

Landstrom, a two-time Olympic starter and two-time Big Ten champion is being touted as the world's next 15-foot vaulter. In 1955 he won the European pole vault title with a leap of 14 feet, 10 inches.

O'Malley's Squeeze Play Lands Bums In Coliseum

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 17 (AP)—Walter O'Malley's long search for a home field for his transplanted Dodgers baseball club ended today in the 101,000-seat Los Angeles Coliseum.

After a frantic day of secret huddles and a three-hour luncheon meeting, an agreement was reached allowing the Dodgers use of what will be the biggest baseball park, in capacity, for the next two years.

It was O'Malley who broke a long deadlock by offering a proposal that adds about $100,000 a year to the $200,000 he offered the Coliseum Commission earlier in the week.

As outlined by O'Malley at a conference on the hard board seats of the Coliseum during a recess in today's meeting with the commission, the plan provides:

A guaranteed annual rental of $20,000, with receipts from concessions credited by the commission to this amount. If the concession income reached $200,000, O'Malley wouldn't have to put up any cash.

In addition, and this was the added touch that produced agreement, O'Malley said he would pay 1 per cent of gross gate receipts and turn over all concession income to the commission for nine games.

The terms for the nine games, which will be the first nine after the opening series with the San Francisco Giants on April 18, are identical to those paid by UCLA, Southern California and the Los Angeles Rams, all of whom play their home football games in the stadium.

This concession by O'Malley overcame objections of the three longtime tenants to the Dodgers getting what they had considered a more favorable deal.

The agreement, greeted jubilantly by the commission and long Dodger staff, climaxed a long, nerve-wracking series of negotiations over where the Dodgers would play until their permanent park is constructed.

O'Malley started eyeing the coliseum as soon as he transferred here from Brooklyn last year, but preliminary talks proved so unfruitful he opened negotiations for the Rose Bowl in nearby Pasadena.

The Rose Bowl deal foundered when O'Malley learned it would cost $750,000 to convert the stadium into a ball park. The Dodgers president was on the verge of playing home games in the 22,000 seat Wrigley Field, former minor league home of the Los Angeles Angels.

He even called a news conference to announce this development, then disclosed at the last minute that the door to the Coliseum was still open a crack and he was going to make one more effort to wedge his way in. In a series of meetings that began earlier this week with the Coliseum commission, O'Malley first increased his offer to $200,000 annual guarantee and then added the final concession today.

Along the line, the opposition of the football tenants to the location of the baseball diamond gave way and the diamond will be laid out in the west end of the stadium as O'Malley desired.

With home plate at the west end, the batters will have no problem with sun in their eyes. At an earlier stage of negotiation, everyone but O'Malley favored having home plate at the east end.

Pressed for details of the diamond layout in the huge bowl, O'Malley said these may be divulged tomorrow, when he is called a news conference for 10 a.m.

Also overcome in the final conferences was the objection of investment firms underwriting a $6,000,000 Sports Arena to be built next to the coliseum and managed by the Coliseum commission. The bankers held that any change in commission policies covering rental and concession would cause a re-evaluation of the financing of the arena, which could take months. However, in the final agreement, it was specifically written that the terms granted O'Malley are to apply only through the 1959 baseball season after which the original policy will be reinstated.

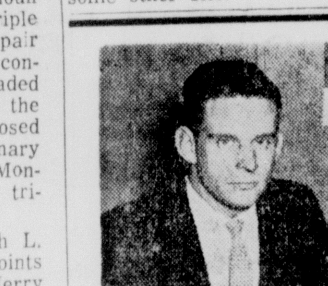

During the two years the Dodgers are in tenancy, UCLA, USC and the Rams will set a rent reduction from 10 per cent of gross receipts to 5 per cent.

O'Malley emerged from the long meeting to announce that work would get underway immediately in the printing of tickets and the arrangements needed to have the Coliseum ready for the opening game three months from tomorrow.

Looking about the vast stadium, he capped his hands to his head and said, "You know what's going to happen now? Opening day it will probably rain."

Still to be settled, is the site of the Dodgers' permanent park. The city will vote June 3 on a proposal to turn 300 acres of city-owned land in Chavez Ravine over to O'Malley in exchange for his Wrigley Field holdings. Should this be approved at the election, O'Malley plans to build a park.

He has said he will spend $10,000,000 for an ultra modern stadium seating some 50,000. Should the ballot measure be rejected, he would have to start looking for some other site.

CHISOX-ORIOLES TRADE

Commissioner To Arbitrate Dispute

By KEN LYDECKER

CHICAGO (UP)—The trade between the Chicago White Sox and Baltimore Orioles involving southpaw Jack Harshman will go before Commissioner Ford Frick on Sunday.

Frick said he would meet with officials of both clubs in Chicago to discuss Harshman's back ailment which may make it necessary for him to undergo an operation. Should that be the case, the Orioles are asking for another pitcher to take the place of Harshman who went to Baltimore Dec. 3 with outfielder Larry Doby and a minor league player for pitcher Ray Moore, infielder Billy Goodman and outfielder Tito Francona.

White Sox officials admit Harshman had an ailing back ever since he joined the club in 1954 but they said it wasn't serious enough to prevent him from winning 48 games and losing only 34 since.

Last August the White Sox team physician, Dr. John Claridge, reported Harshman was suffering from a "muscle spasm" in the back. It sidelined the lanky lefty for one month but he began pitching batting practice and went the route in beating Cleveland, 2-1, a few days before the season ended.

The White Sox said Vice President Bill Walsingham of the Orioles called Chicago Vice President Charles Comiskey in late December to report Harshman had undergone X-rays at Johns Hopkins Hospital. At that time it was reported Harshman had a slipped disc in his back and that he had no reflexes in the left foot.

The White Sox insist the trade was made in good faith and that they were unaware of Harshman's back condition when the deal was made. The Chicago officials said Dr. Claridge judged that the muscle spasm could be cured by the use of diathermy.

Doctors in Mercy Hospital in Chicago also examined Harshman and found traces of a defect in a bone in the lower part of the spine. They said the defect had developed properly from birth and that the result was a weakness in the lower part of the back. They added that could be the reason for the lack of reflexes in Harshman's left foot.

Harshman, who is spending the winter with his father in San Diego, Calif., said he is as puzzled as the next person as to his back condition.

"I've talked to doctors about it," said the converted first baseman, "and they have diagnosed the trouble as a slipped disc. Some have suggested an operation but at present I have no plans for the operation or even where it would be performed."

YOUR PROBLEMS

From 9 To 5, 'Yes Sir' After 5, Say 'No Sir'

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann: I'm a secretary to a successful business man. He's a bachelor about 50, and a stickler for formality. He insists that I answer "Yes, Sir," and "No Sir," and if I forget, he reminds me. I resent this show of pomp, particularly since after 5:00 o'clock he becomes overly friendly. He has asked me repeatedly to join him for a cocktail and even dinner. I'm married, and he's well aware of this. Also, I'm about 20 years his junior. This "Sir" routine irks me because it's so put on. Yet I love my position and I don't want to lose it. The hours and salary suit me perfectly. Any advice on how to keep my job — AND my self-respect? IRRITATED.

Dear Irritated: Say "Yes Sir" from 9:00 a.m. until 5:00 p.m. After 5:00 — say "No Sir."

Dear Ann: Will you please settle a dispute between my husband and myself?

My father-in-law, who is a widower, writes to us often. He always addresses the envelope to "Mr. Ex and Family." He never bothers to put Mrs. on the envelope. Then he begins the letter "Dear Folks," again failing to mention my name or making any acknowledgment that I exist. He winds up by simply signing his initials.

I've become increasingly annoyed over this and my husband and I have had some words. He claims it is just an oddity and I say it's an under-handed way of ignoring me. I'm in favor of bringing it up the next time he visits. My husband says to skip it because it's not important enough to be made an issue. May I have your opinion? — Lee

I agree with your husband. This is too petty to complain about. It would only result in a knock-down, drag-out family fight.

Since the envelope is addressed to "the family" and the letters begin "Dear Folks," include yourself in.

Recently I heard from a woman whose husband received three letters a week from his mother. On the envelope she marks, "Personal and Confidential to Mr. Only" — now that gal has a problem!

Dear Ann: I have a rather embarrassing situation and don't know how to handle it. I do day work for a woman who has a small boy. A few weeks ago she gave me a box of clothing her child had outgrown.

I have a friend with a boy the same size, who is in financial difficulty and appreciates any help I can give her. I wrote that I would soon be sending a box of clothing and mentioned the lovely snow-suit so that she wouldn't go out and buy one. I left the box over the weekend. When I prepared to take it home I was shocked to find that most of the good things had been taken out. The snow suit was among them.

I feel I've committed myself, yet I can't afford to go out and buy another snow-suit. Shall I mention this to the lady of the house or what? Please help me do the right thing. — Day Lady

After giving you the clothing, it should have been considered yours. Apparently your employer had some second thoughts, which was unfortunate, but there's nothing you can do.

Simply write your friend and explain. She will understand. You're not obligated to buy her child a snow-suit. From now on, when the lady of the house gives you a box of clothing, say "Thank you" — and take it home the same day.

Confidentially: Eagle-Eye Jones Your vision is so perfect I think you're seeing things that don't exist. What you consider "evidence" is not evidence at all. Quit reading those junky novels and give these people a fair chance.

Feeling Blue: That Bird of Paradise you speak of is not at the bottom of the bottle. You need A. A.

Mrs. E. Yeldell Is Hostess For Coffee Shower

The Yeldell home was the setting for a pretty pink and blue shower this week when Mrs. E. Yeldell, with Mrs. Cecil Carter, entertained as a complement to Mrs. Glen Russ.

The anticipation theme was carried out in decorations and the honoree was presented with a corsage. Chuckle — provoking games were enjoyed by:

Mrs. L. R. Estus, Mrs. Don Weaver, Mrs. Billy Ramsauer, Mrs. Willie Johnson, Mrs. Phillip Ivy, Mrs. Rollie Nelson and Mrs. Hazel Russ. Also invited were Mrs. Troy Holland and Mrs. Bennie Carter, Mrs. E. J. Brittain, Mrs. O. M. Wright, Mrs. Jimmy Hightower, Mrs. R. C. Webb and Mrs. Ida Bell Webb.

Refreshments were served by the hostesses, following the games.

Here's a favorite casserole to serve with charcoal-broiled steak. Dilute condensed cream-of-mushroom soup and mix with cooked drained green snap beans. Heat in the oven; then about five minutes before the beans are ready to come out, top the casserole with canned crisp French-fried onion rings.

Altrusa Members Hear Address On Home Safety

"Safety In The Home" was the theme of a talk given to Altrusa members by George M. Ineichen, Child Safety Consultant, Northern Regional Office, La. State Department of Health, when they held their January dinner meeting at the Rendezvous on Thursday night.

Hostesses for the meeting were members of the Public Affairs committee, Mrs. Adrienne Carr, Miss Ann Mickel, Mrs. Madeline Hirsch and Miss Gertrude Gregory. Mrs. Mabel Hood, who had charge of table arrangements.

Striking arrangements of Red Snowbirds perched atop snow covered pine branches created a winter atmosphere to the dinner table. Further carrying out the theme were tall burning red tapers and red bird place cards and programs. Miss Gertrude Gregory introduced the guest speaker.

In speaking of the "Accident prevention program set up by the Louisiana State Health Department" which got under way this month, Mr. Ineichen said that in Northeast Louisiana, Richland and Lincoln parishes will take part in a five-parish study in an attempt to find practical methods for the prevention of accidents. He stated that public health nurses and sanitarians will investigate accidents reported to local health units by physicians and will collect specific data. The collection of data will continue for one year and the results of the study will be published. The safety consultant explained that the information gained from the study will be used "to plan the integration of accident prevention activities into the routine work of public health personnel."

Despite much progress in their prevention, accidents are still the fourth leading cause of death in this country, Ineichen said. The latest figures reveal that about 30,000 accidental deaths occur each year in American homes. Most of these deaths are caused by falls or fire, with old people and children the most frequent victims. Poisonings by solid or liquid substances accounted for 1,650 deaths. These are the figures for the country as a whole. It's amazing how much can be accomplished with just a little more foresight in planning the arrangement of furnishings and decorations in each room, a little more care in handling fire, electricity, guns and sharp implements we create for others when we leave things lying around or fail to put medicine and poisons out of children's reach. "Once we know more about the major causes of accidents in Louisiana, we can build a practical program for accident prevention," he concluded.

Enjoying this occasion were the following: Mrs. Erlene Adams, Miss Mary Benoit, Mrs. Maud Benstrup, Mrs. Thelma Bond, Mrs. Adrienne Carr, Mrs. Jewel Durham, Miss Lillie Glenn, Mrs. Ada Gruber, Mrs. Paye Heard, Dr. Julia Hunter, Mrs. Addie Lou Jumanan, Mrs. Helen Luckett, Miss Bernice McCoy, Mrs. Gord-

House Cleaning Made Easier By Knowing How

With spring house cleaning just around the corner, in many a home it means a paint job. For the do-it-yourself contingent, some timely hints have been compiled by Mrs. Homemaker's Forum, a non-profit organization that invites housewives to send them their original household ideas.

Here are some suggestions for painting around the house, which have been found helpful:

Glue the can of paint to a cardboard. In this way when paint drips, it will not get on the floor.

When painting moldings, use a cardboard over them, so as not to get paint on the walls.

When through painting, dip the brush into a can filled with half water, half Pine-Sol. Let soak overnight, then rinse again in clean solution of water and Pine-Sol.

From each can of paint, save some and keep in empty nail polish bottle. Then when paint chips, you can fill in the spots easily.

When painting the ceiling, wear swim goggles, so that paint will not get in your eyes.

Save old gloves. They come in handy when painting.

An easy way to keep a "paint inventory" is when the painting job is finished, take the paintbrush and draw a line on the outside of the paint can, at the level of the paint inside. Just a glance at the paint shelf will tell what colors and quantities you have on hand.

If you do your own decorating, dip clean white blotters in mixed paint to see how the colors will look on wall surfaces. The dry paint on the blotters will be the same color as your walls will be when they are dry.

When you are painting a ceiling or any surface above your head, take a small rubber ball, cut it into parts, and make a small slit on the curved surface just big enough to pull the handle of the paintbrush through, cup side up. This will catch the dripping paint and keep your hands, arms and clothing clean.

To avoid bending knees when painting the basement floor, tie a paint roller to mop handle. It will do a good job in half the time.

To keep paint off hinges or other hardware when you are painting woodwork, coat them lightly with vaseline. Any paint that gets on them will wipe off easily.

The night before the big paint job, turn all the unopened paint cans over, bottoms up. Then the task of having to mix and prepare paints the following morning is half done.

To prepare a wall for painting, place cellophane tape over all the cracks. Then paint over it.

Widow With Child Finds Solution To Problems

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

Any woman who has been left alone with children through death or divorce will find something of value in this widow's experience.

Mrs. G. S. S. writes, "I would like to tell you how I solved a potentially serious problem, and perhaps some of your readers can garner help from it."

"My husband and I separated and then divorced almost eight years ago when my daughter was one year old. I moved back home as so many of us do, and remained there for two years."

"I moved into my own apartment, in the suburbs, when I realized I was losing my identity as my child's mother, as my own mother was so much of a substitute."

"Rough Sledding" "Let me tell you it was rough sledding for a long while. I felt sorry for myself. I was bitter and depressed, thinking I was the only one in this particular situation. This affected both my daughter and me as we were both insecure and showed it."

"I don't know what encouraged me to change and have hope but I believe my daughter's faith in me helped a great deal. All I can do, I tell myself, is the best with what I have to do. The fortunate ones. Too many widows have to make a good life for themselves by themselves."

"Several years ago I started to attend college at night and in one year I will graduate with a degree in the profession of my choosing."

"I mention this to show that there is a way if we will find it, or perhaps let a child lead us. All this is fine but there is still the problem of my social life. From the beginning my daughter has understood that in addition to my being her mother I am also a separate individual, a human being who may one day share my life with a man we both love."

"She understands, too, that she is an individual and will one day share her life with another. I cannot phrase it more aptly than she did when she said, 'It would be lovely for you to marry because then we would both have someone else to love and to love us.' There is always hope and good fortune, if we can just see them through our tears of despair."

May I say, if you are to be married, that you are one of the fortunate ones. Too many widows have to make a good life for themselves by themselves.

YOUR PROBLEMS

From 9 To 5, 'Yes Sir' After 5, Say 'No Sir'

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann: I'm a secretary to a successful business man. He's a bachelor about 50, and a stickler for formality. He insists that I answer "Yes, Sir," and "No, Sir," and if I forget, he reminds me. I resent this show of pomp, particularly since after 5:00 o'clock he becomes overly friendly. He has asked me repeatedly to join him for a cocktail and even dinner. I'm married, and he's well aware of this. Also, "Sir" routine irks me because it's so put on. Yet I love my position and I don't want to lose it. The hours and salary suit me perfectly. Any advice on how to keep my job - AND my self - respect? IRRITATED.

Dear Irritated: Say "Yes Sir" from 9:00 a.m. until 5:00 p.m. After 5:00 - say "No Sir."

Dear Ann: Will you please settle a dispute between my husband and myself?

My father - in - law, who is a widower, writes to us often. He always addresses the envelope to "Mr. Ex and Family." He never bothers to put Mrs. on the envelope. Then he begins the letter "Dear Folks," again failing to mention my name or making any acknowledgment that I exist. He winds up by simply signing his initials.

I've become increasingly annoyed over this and my husband and I have had some words. He claims it is just an oddity and I say it's an under - handed way of ignoring me. I'm in favor of bringing it up the next time he visits. My husband says to skip it because it's not important enough to be made an issue. May we have your opinion? - Lee

I agree with your husband. This is too petty to complain about. It would only result in a knock-down, drag - out family fight.

Since the envelope is addressed to "the family," and the letters begin "Dear Folks," include your self in.

Recently I heard from a woman whose husband received three letters a week from his mother. On the envelope she marks, "Personal and Confidential to Mr. Only" - now that gal has a problem!

Dear Ann: I have a rather embarrassing situation and don't know how to handle it. I do day work for a woman who has a small boy. A few weeks ago she gave me a box of clothing her child had outgrown.

I have a friend with a boy the same size, who is in financial difficulty and appreciates any help I can give her. I wrote that I would soon be sending a box of clothing and mentioned the lovely snow-suit so that she wouldn't go out and buy one.

I left the box over the weekend. When I prepared to take it home I was egghdtdtshnetdeanaknb I was shocked to find that most of the good things had been taken out. The snow suit was among them.

I feel I've committed myself, yet I can't afford to go out and buy another snow - suit. Shall I mention this to the lady of the house or what? Please help me do the right thing. - Day Lady

After giving you the clothing, it should have been considered yours. Apparently your employer had some second thoughts, which was unfortunate, but there's nothing you can do.

Simply write your friend and explain. She will understand. You're not obligated to buy her child a snow - suit. From now on, when the lady of the house gives you a box of clothing, say "Thank you" - and take it home the same day.

Confidentially: Eagle-Eye Jones Your vision is so perfect I think you're seeing things that don't exist. What you consider "evidence" is not evidence at all. Quit reading those junky novels and give these people a fair chance.

Feeling Blue: That Bird of Paradise you speak of is not at the bottom of the bottle. You need A. A.

Mrs. E. Yeldell Is Hostess For Coffee Shower

The Yeldell home was the setting for a pretty pink and blue shower this week when Mrs. Ed Yeldell, with Mrs. Cecil Carter, entertained as a compliment to Mrs. Ellen Russ.

The anticipation theme was carried out in decorations and the honoree was presented with a corsage. Chuckle - provoking games were enjoyed by:

Mrs. L. R. Estus, Mrs. Don Weaver, Mrs. Billy Ramsauer, Mrs. Willie Johnson, Mrs. Phillip Ivy, Mrs. Rollie Nelson and Mrs. Hazel Russ. Also invited were Mrs. Troy Holland, Mrs. Bennie Carter, Mrs. E. J. Brittain, Mrs. O. M. Wright, Mrs. Jimmy Hightower, Mrs. R. C. Webb and Mrs. Ida Bell Webb.

Refreshments were served by the hostesses, following the games.

Here's a favorite casserole to serve with charcoal-broiled steak. Dilute condensed cream-of-mushroom soup and mix with cooked drained green snap beans. Heat in the oven; then about five minutes before the beans are ready to come out, top the casserole with canned crisp French-fried onion rings.

Altrusa Members Hear Address On Home Safety

"Safety In The Home" was the theme of a talk given to Altrusa members by George M. Ineichen, Child Safety Consultant, Northern Regional Office, La. State Department of Health, when they held their January dinner meeting at the Rendezvous on Thursday night.

Hostesses for the meeting were members of the Public Affairs committee, Mrs. Adrienne Carr, Miss Ann Mickel, Mrs. Madeline Hirsch and Miss Gertrude Gregory and Mrs. Mabel Hood, who had charge of table arrangements.

Striking arrangements of Red Snowbirds perched atop snow covered pine branches created a winter atmosphere to the dinner table. Further carrying out the theme were tall burning red tapers and red bird place cards and programs. Miss Gertrude Gregory introduced the guest speaker.

In speaking of the "Accident prevention program set up by the Louisiana State Health Department" which got under way this month, Mr. Ineichen said that in Northeast Louisiana, Richland and Lincoln parishes will take part in a five-year study in an attempt to find practical methods for the prevention of accidents. He stated that public health nurses and sanitarians will investigate accidents reported to local health units by physicians and will collect specific data. The collection of data will continue for one year and the results of the study will be published. The safety consultant explained that the information gained from the study will be used "to plan the integration of accident prevention activities into the routine work of public health personnel."

Despite much progress in their prevention, accidents are still the fourth leading cause of death in this country, Ineichen said. The latest figures reveal that about 30,000 accidental deaths occur each year in American homes. Most of these deaths are caused by falls or fire, with old people and children the most frequent victims. Poisonings by solid or liquid substances accounted for 1,050 deaths. These are the figures for the country as a whole. It's amazing how much can be accomplished with just a little more foresight in planning the arrangement of furnishings and decorations in each room, a little more care in handling fire, electricity, guns and sharp implements we create for others when we leave things lying around or fail to put medicine and poisons out of children's reach. "Once we know more about the major causes of accidents in Louisiana, we can build a practical program for accident prevention," he concluded.

Enjoying this occasion were the following: Mrs. Erlene Adams, Miss Mary Benoit, Mrs. Maud Benstrup, Mrs. Thelma Bond, Mrs. Adrienne Carr, Mrs. Jewel Durham, Miss Lillie Glenn, Mrs. Ada Gruber, Mrs. Faye Heard, Dr. Julia Hunter, Mrs. Addie Lou Juneman, Mrs. Helen Luckett, Miss Bernice McCoy, Mrs. Gordon Phillips, Miss Helen Sype, Mrs. Kathryn Higgins and Mr. Ineichen.

The J. McDows Are Honored At Thursday Tea

The home of Jean and Mrs. Hayne Folk Jr. of Ruston provided the setting for a Tea on Thursday, honoring Dr. and Mrs. John McDow. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wilcox, Mr. and Mrs. Larry LaPue were co-hosts with the Folks for the affair.

Dr. and Mrs. McDow have recently returned from Michigan where the doctor received his Ph.D. from Michigan State University.

An arrangement of flowering quince in a low milk-glass container formed the mantel decor. Magnolia leaves in a large planter screened the fireplace and camellias and narcissi formed a springtime bouquet on the coffee table.

Pink was the predominating color in the dining room, where the tea table was covered with a pink linen cloth edged in fringe. Camellias and candytuft adorned the table where a milk glass punch bowl held strawberry cream. A handsome silver basket containing fruit, foliage and narcissi added interest to the setting.

Assisting in the serving were Mrs. Herman Gland and Mrs. Fredric Gland.

The guest list was composed of students majoring in Agricultural Engineering. Dr. McDow will resume his duties as head of this department on Feb. 4.

Presbyterians Hear Address By Missionary

WINNSBORO - The Rev. Harold Borchert, missionary to Japan Friday afternoon spoke at the First Presbyterian Church.

Mr. Borchert first went to Japan with his family in 1952. He was stationed in the fall of 1954 at Kochi Ken, Japan, where he and Mrs. Borchert were two of a force of five missionaries responsible for bringing the Gospel message to the 900,000 people of this locality. He reported that now the station has a force of eight with several Japanese ministers to help them. More missionaries are needed and while he and his wife are on furlough some Bible classes will stop, children will have Sunday School only twice a month, and other groups will meet only seven or eight times a year.

Mr. Borchert is a native of Michigan. He attended Wofford and is a graduate of Columbia Theological Seminary. Mrs. Borchert is the former Lois Allen Wilson of Pineville and Alexandria. They have three children and plan to return to Japan this summer.

WHY GROW OLD?

How Do You Look In The Back? Check This List

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Our front view is more important than our back view, yet we DO leave a room as well as enter it! Actually, folks are more likely to be critical of our rear view than front, because they are diverted by our facial expression and by the necessity of greeting us in the latter instance.

If you wish to be as attractive as possible, there are many things you might forget unless you look into a full length mirror over your shoulder. Here are some of them:

1. Your hairline in the back is important. It, too, must be well-groomed and must flatter your neck and your personality. If you have a short neck your hair should not be long in the back or your neck will disappear. Very masculine haircuts in the back are unattractive and if your ears are too prominent they should be covered. Hair on the neck may spoil your appearance.

2. Remember that your clothes may not look wrinkled in the front but may need pressing because of creases from sitting in the back.

Exercise

3. Many women look broader back view than side view because of pads of fat high on the hips, just underneath the waistline in the back you can improve these with exercise. Avoid wide belts. These, especially if they are tight, emphasize the breadth of the upper hips. A narrow belt or no belt is best.

4. Collars or necklines are important, back view. A high collar cuts off a short neck just as long hair does. If you have a Dowager's Hump, the hump at the back of the neck, your suit or dress should cover this. An unattractively long neck can be flattered by a collar which is high in the back.

5. Naturally we all know that crooked stocking seams are not an asset.

6. Any defect in the way you walk is more noticeable when observed from the rear. Avoid wobbling or switching from side to side, or bouncing. Reach straight forward from the hips with each step, toes pointing forward. Be sure that your knees are relaxed. Do not hyperextend them at the end of each step.

If your hips are out of line, you may want my tested hip-slimming exercises. If so, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 3 to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

LMA MEET CALLED DONALDSONVILLE, La. — (UP) — A meeting of the sixth district of Louisiana Municipal Association has been called to discuss legislative matters. The coming meet will be the final one before the state LMA convention, according to B. A. Vetter, president of the sixth district LMA.

Parachutes would be useless on the moon, because it has no atmosphere.

Entertaining Can Be Pleasant For Hostess

In present day, servantless homes, most entertaining is being done on a less elaborate scale. Yet the large dinner party or buffet supper need be no less festive. The woman who fills the roles of cook, maid and hostess, simply must utilize all of the modern tricks at her disposal to make entertaining a pleasure rather than a chore.

As cook, she can rely on a good many foods from the freezer to supplement her own favorite dishes.

In the matter of table appointments, there has been a good deal of relaxation on the correctness of settings and linens to be used. For instance, place mats and colored cloths which are easy to launder are being used more and more in homes. Growing in usage too, are some of the paper napkins which homemakers have discovered are not only practical but every bit as attractive as conventional linens.

One of the newest, for example, are Kleenex table napkins which have the look and feel of linen. Designed primarily to fill the need for a durable disposable napkin, the manufacturer has developed a softer product, yet one which is sturdy enough to last through any meal. And important, too, is the fact that they will cling to your lap rather than constantly slide to the floor.

Sewing Girls
Have Bigger
Wardrobes

Make your own clothes and you can have a bigger wardrobe. So says one small seamstress, brunette Marcia Bauer, 13, of Indianapolis, Ind., who parlayed her sewing machine into a trip to New York, and other prizes. She is a student at Westlane Junior High School, sings in the church choir and is an assistant Sunday school teacher.

"I usually make about two or three dresses and five or six skirts every year," she says. "I buy wool for the skirts in blocks. It is cheaper that way."

The best sewing plan for new sewers is to make a trial pattern before you cut your good material, advises Marcia. Then you know you are on the right track. It takes a little longer but it is worth it, especially if you cut more than one outfit from the same pattern, she says. Her mother helps her.

Marcia buys her fabrics out of her allowance.

Her father allots her and her three older brothers and sister each $5 a week. Her 10-year-old brother gets $3, and two little sisters get 25 to 50 cents a week. The six allowances are based on work chores. The boys clean up their rooms and empty the trash, the girls do breakfast and lunch dishes and dinner dishes three nights a week. They must also feed the dogs and cats. Marcia does cat-sitting, too, for vacationing neighbors and earns extra money that way.

She has been a contestant in this sewing contest for three years, won the shop contest for two years with honorable mention in the regional contest until this year when she won first prize in her area. She was runner-up in the big national finale in New York. Her winning dress is made of cotton in a small plaid design in shades of brown, beige and charcoal with a natural linen collar. She employed the cording foot, ruffler and hand hemmer to give it a special prize-winning touch.

NOT FOR RESIDENTS
MONTPELIER, Vt. — (UP) — Some 30 proposed picnic areas to be built by the state at a cost of $45,000 have been declared "off limits" to Vermonters. The state board of forests and parks said the facilities are to be used by tourists and not as "picnic or outing areas for neighboring residents."

Barn Is Destroyed By Fire In Epps

EPPS (Special) — The barn of J. T. Sharpin burned to ground about noon yesterday, filled with 600 bales of hay and a few farm implements.

The fire truck from Delhi answered the alarm, but arrived too late to save anything. Mrs. Sharpin reported the fire after Robert Miller, a neighbor who was passing by saw the flaming barn.

Origin of the fire was unknown, firemen said. Some cattle in the barn escaped without injury.

Nat'l Guard Withdraws Its Night Patrol

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Jan. 17 (AP)—The Army tonight turned the mission of guarding Central High School back to civilian watchmen for the weekend.

This was in line with the military's recent policy of keeping troops at the forcibly integrated school only during classroom hours.

The policy was altered for the first time in weeks last night when reports of a possible bomb planting sent a platoon of soldiers hurrying to Central High.

Officials of the Arkansas military district announced today that a thorough search of the building failed to reveal any evidence of a bomb. Troops were withdrawn shortly after midnight, a spokesman said, and a normal class day patrol of 25 federalized Arkansas National Guardsmen was stationed at the school today.

It was a holiday for Central High's 2,000 white students and Negro pupils. But the Army said no one at military district headquarters had been advised of this, so a regular daytime patrol was sent out.

Teachers got the day off so teachers could grade mid-term examination papers.

The Little Rock police department said no officers would be assigned to the Central High area tonight. A police spokesman said he understood the school planned to hire a few off-duty patrolmen to augment the force of watchmen.

The bomb scare followed another racial incident at Central High during school hours yesterday.

Mrs. Thomas Sontag said her 16-year-old ward, David Sontag, poured soup on a Negro girl in the cafeteria after the Negro girl called him "white trash."

School officials have declined to say whether the Sontag boy was suspended for the incident. Supt. Virgil T. Blossom said principal Jess Matthews was conducting an investigation.

Mrs. Sontag said the boy, her brother-in-law, told her the Negro girl was Minnie Jean Brown, 16. The Brown girl was herself reinstated only Monday after being suspended Dec. 17. School authorities said she poured chili on two white boys in another cafeteria incident.

Central High was integrated by federal troops Sept. 25.

14 Join Business Frat At La. Tech

RUSTON (Special) — Twelve students and two faculty members were recently initiated into the Louisiana Tech chapter of Delta Sigma Pi, honorary business fraternity. Donald Craig, Shreveport, was selected as the honor pledge for the semester at the banquet held in a local restaurant following the initiation.

New members of the organization are: Jim Appleby, Shreveport; Richard Bennett, Dubach; Delton Barlow, Jonesboro; Nathan Cabaniss, Olla; Donald Craig, Shreveport; Donald Carroll, Oak Grove; Guy Dowell, Ruston; Raymond Edwards, Ruston; Bobby Meece, Shreveport; Joseph Little, Ruston; Dan Wigley, Minden; and Phillip McCrary, Arcadia. The two faculty members initiated were Dr. Paul T. Hendershot, professor of economics and finance, and E. Carl Jones, associate professor of economics.

The Colony and Protectorate of Gambia, Britain's oldest link to west Africa, comprises little more than a broad river with narrow strips of land on each side, the National Geographic Magazine says. Leading exports are peanuts, palm kernels, and beeswax.

San Antonio led for the four weeks with an increase of 8 per cent over the same period a year ago. Dallas showed a 6 per cent gain. Fort Worth 4 per cent and El Paso 3 per cent, according to the Federal Reserve Bank of Dallas.

Claims Cash Position Of U.S. Is Tight

WASHINGTON (UP)—Secretary of the Treasury Anderson told Congress today that distressingly low cash balances in the Treasury necessitate the five-billion-dollar increase in the legal debt limit asked by the administration.

He said the cash position now is so tight that next month treasury balances in commercial banks may get down to 250 million dollars, or less than an average day's disbursements.

Appearing before the House Ways and Means Committee, Anderson said the request for a hike in the debt limit from 276 to 280 billion dollars until June 30, 1959, was based also on the need for more flexibility in managing debt obligations.

"Even with a balanced budget there will still be large seasonal fluctuations in receipts which make operations under the 275-billion-dollar limitation most difficult," he said.

The committee is expected to approve legislation for the higher debt ceiling. Action may come next week and that would send the question on to the Senate.

Anderson told the House members he hopes to get more of the government's debt into long-term obligations. In recent years, much of the debt financing has been through short-term notes and certificates rather than long-term bonds.

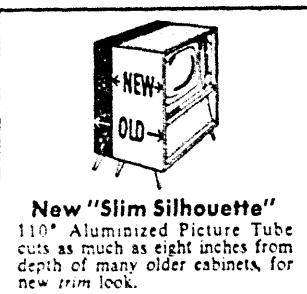

Anderson noted that the Treasury must meet more than 25 billion dollars of Treasury bills coming due within the next 50 days, and more than 50 million in all forms of obligations maturing in the calendar year 1958.

The higher debt limit, he said, will help the Treasury take advantage of opportunities in the period ahead for long-term financing.
